2020: Leadership for a New Decade

One only needs to look around to know that we are living in tumultuous times and yet tweets, and memes fill our inboxes daily highlighting every possible low point when it comes to many of our leaders.

With global complexity having risen to unprecedented highs, technology changing our world daily, our planet straining, economies slowing, mental illness rising and the gap between rich and poor continuing to grow, we need leadership now more than ever before.

At the start of this new decade lets pause to reflect on what we can learn from some of these leaders.
